

Berardi's new logistics division

The mission of Berardi Group is to become a full supplying partner for its customers, whilst offering a 360° service. Therefore 2021 will see Berardi renew its logistics division under the new name 'B-Lean Factory Systems'.

The B-Lean team develops customised logistics solutions for clients that demand flexibility, reliability and quick responses even to the most complex requirements. The new division will target wasteful processes along the supply chain, allowing clients to forget the fuss of managing C-parts.

"We are well equipped to assist the client in choosing the best item for their needs, thanks to our specialised technical staff. Our internal quality assurance department is among the best equipped in our sector and guarantees each item is quality controlled, as well as providing post sales support. Our objective is to offer a complete and punctual service, becoming a partner for our clients," comments Andrea Destro, B-Lean team manager.

The decision was made to relaunch this logistics division after 2020 pushed companies to develop new strategies. The move also follows Berardi's expansion of its item assortment to over 50,000 stock items, as well as the launch of a new product catalogue – Extracomponents – which includes springs, fittings, clamps, cable management items, anti-vibration mounts, operating parts and more.

"Our goal is to enhance the performance of the companies with which we collaborate, using a pragmatic approach to analyse and solve logistics problems. Personalised solutions are crucial to extract the full potential from our services. For each project, we offer the specialised skills of our team whilst building a relationship of mutual trust with the client. First, we learn the client's requirements, then we proceed to realising the project in close cooperation with them," concludes Andrea. +
